

OFF THE SHELF FORENSICS

UT NFA Instructors

What is off the shelf?

- These are items that are readily available to us locally that we can repurpose for forensic applications
- The definition has expanded to include additional sources because it depends why we are doing it

Why?

- Cost
  - Not just the agency
- Time
- Do more

Crime Scene Processing

Powder for Snow Impressions

- In the past we have used snow print wax
- Several companies have developed powders now as well for the same purpose
- Both have good and bad points

Powder Snow Prints

This works because powder coat paint is actually plastic. It will not combine with water and the powder is very fine. All we do is shake the bottle and squeeze out the powder that is in the air in the bottle. This results in a nice even thin coat of powder. This product works no matter how long it is in the cold and is not affected by varying storage temperatures (being in the car). The bottle picture here will last us years and cost $6.00.

Technical Report

Development of Fingerprints using Electrolysis: A Technical Report into the Development of Fingerprints on Fired Brass Cartridge Cases

Fatima Nizam<sup>1</sup>

John D. Stewart<sup>2</sup>

Abstract: This paper examines whether electrolysis could be a useful method in the development of latent fingerprints on fired brass cartridge cases. The influence of electrolysis on galvanic metal corrosion was explored. We found that the clarity of the fingerprints was time sensitive and improved as acid concentration increased with lower duration of electrolysis.

Power Supply

Or you could...

- Very short burst of electricity (about 1 second check for development)
- Repeat

- Post development halt process with baking soda and water solution
- If you skip this step development will continue and potentially obliterate the print

- Very useful for “pole” photography, copy stand work, and low light photography
